

YOUR PROBLEMS

'Choose Between Moustache-Kisses ...'

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a handle bar moustache of which he is very proud. He keeps it neat and enjoys it because people who never noticed him before notice him now.

The trouble is his moustache has given me a rash under my nose and on my chin. The itching drives me crazy and the doctor says I will have the rash as long as my husband has the moustache — unless I stay away from him.

Also, the wax my husband uses on his moustache has a sickeningly sweet odor which nauseates me. I am not the nagging type. I mention things and that's the limit. He knows the problem and shows no sign of doing anything about it. Yesterday he casually announced that he has no intention of cutting off his moustache when the centennial is over.

I would appreciate any suggestions you might have. — TICKLED BUT NOT LAUGHING

Dear Tickled: Ask your doctor to phone or write a note to your husband explaining the situation. Then tell your husband you are willing to compromise and remain friendly until after the centennial. If he doesn't cut the moustache off after the celebration tell him he can choose between his moustache and your kisses.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 16 years old, a fine student and an obedient, respectful boy. After dinner last night his young friend who is exactly the same age came over to the house. I could see quite promptly that the young friend (whom I will call Doug) had been drinking. He was talking louder than usual, slurring his words and behaving in a generally uncoordinated manner.

I came right out and asked Doug if he had something alcoholic. He proudly replied, "Yes, my father always offers me a highball when he has one. Tonight I had several." My husband and I were dumbfounded. Then he added nonchalantly, "On the way over here I almost fell off my bicycle."

My husband believes we should order our son to break off his friendship with Doug before he picks up some bad
